Comments: The website pages of STATQUEST provide ample detail regarding each concept. 3 of the pages are inferential statistic concepts and the videos and related material for each concept helps the learner grasp the information. The videos are of high quality and the scenarios chosen for each concept aid understanding. The Z test page is a little hard to follow with all of the videos that are on that page. There is one grammar mistake on the home page. As a reference site, someone may only need help with one concept, however, a couple of the videos reference previous concepts/videos. Overall, the content and attractiveness of the site are very good. The home page describes how the site will benefit the researcher and the content pages are easy to navigate. The descriptions and examples are thorough. The site is valuable as a resource.
